

Dear Permissions Editor:

I am preparing a work tentatively entitled _____, which will be published shortly in the American Journal of Archaeology (AJA), the scholarly journal of the Archaeological Institute of America, a nonprofit organization for the promotion of archaeology. The print run of the publication is about 900 copies and the digital format is available online at <https://www.journals.uchicago.edu/aja>.

I hereby request your permission to publish the material specified on the next page, in both the print and digital formats of the journal, on the basis of a nonexclusive, perpetual, royalty-free license in the AJA, in the original language and in translation, without changes (except where the journal, in its sole discretion, determines that foreign language symbols require transliteration, or that graphics, pictures, images, or charts, require “cropping” for appropriate display in the journal), in any and all media throughout the world, including electronic and microfilm, and to use the material in conjunction with computer-based electronic and information retrieval systems, to grant permissions for photocopying, reproductions and reprints, to translate the material and to publish the translation, and to authorize document delivery and abstracting and indexing services.

Unless you specify otherwise, the credit line for the use of this material will follow conventional designations: “after” (possible redrafting but no change in information); “modified from” (some change); “adapted from” (radical change). If no change is made, only the reference source will be noted.

Please indicate your acceptance by signing the next page; return this original to me and keep a copy for your files. If you do not hold these rights, please provide the name and address of the proprietor of the copyright. Should you require a specific credit line, please provide this information on the next page. Thank you in advance for your assistance with this matter.

Sincerely,
