

Supplementary Content: Image Gallery

Images to accompany the American Journal of Archaeology publication:

Reception of the Roman Arch Monument

Kimberly Cassibry

Link to this article: <https://doi.org/10.3764/aja.122.2.0245>

Published online 19 March 2018
American Journal of Archaeology Volume 122, Number 2
DOI: 10.3764/ajaonline1222.Cassibry.suppl

This online-only published content is freely available electronically immediately upon publication and can be distributed under the Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial License (CC BY-NC). This license allows anyone to reuse, remix, and build upon the content, as long as it is for legal noncommercial purposes; the new work must credit the author, the AJA, and the Archaeological Institute of America.

Unless otherwise noted in the caption, images are by the author. Images are not edited by the AJA to the same level as those in the published article.

FIG. 1. Southeastern facade of the remains of the triple-bay arch at Mérida, Spain, with a view of the central archway and one lateral archway, constructed in the early first century C.E.

FIG. 2. Northeastern facade of the tetrapylon at Cáparra, Spain, constructed in the late first century C.E.

FIG. 3. Southwestern facade of the tetrapylon at Cáparra, Spain, constructed in the late first century C.E.

FIG. 4. View from the southeast of the tetrapylon on the Decumanus Maximus, Herculaneum, Italy, constructed in the mid first century C.E.

FIG. 5. View of the southwestern facade of the tetrapylon, with decoration visible under the archivolt and barrel vault, Herculaneum, Italy, constructed in the mid first century C.E.

FIG. 6. Arch for the Holconii, northwestern pier with an oblique view of the statue pedestal dedicated to Marcus Holconius Rufus, Pompeii, Italy, first century C.E.

FIG. 7. Relief of Silenus, Gate of Silenus, Thasos, Greece, constructed ca. 500 B.C.E.

FIG. 8. Relief of Apollo and Nymphs, with an offering niche, northwest wall of the Passage des Théores, Thasos, Greece, sculpted ca. 480 B.C.E.

FIG. 9. Relief of Hermes and Charites, northwest wall of the Passage des Théores, Thasos, Greece, sculpted ca. 480 B.C.E.